This month in Gold Class:

We celebrated World Book Day with a wonderful sensory exploration inspired by the story What the Ladybird Heard. The children immersed themselves in the world of the farm, using their senses to bring the story to life. We tuned in to the sounds of the animals from the story using sound buttons. We also explored a range of textures, like the feel of sheepskin or the feather, splashing in water. Our activity table was transformed into a mini farm world, complete with hay, a tractor, a farmhouse, books about and pictures of the animals. The children loved investigating the different materials and using the props to retell parts of the story in their own imaginative ways.

It was a delightful celebration of books, play, and sensory learning — we had so much fun exploring the story together.

STAR OF THE MONTH

Lorenzo – for showing great exploration skills using all his senses. Well done!

CARE

As we do a lot of sensory messy play in class, please send your child in with the spare clothing.

A gentle reminder about our 'Stay and Play' sessions. This is an opportunity to join your child in class to share their learning and meet the wider class team.
